

BIRDS and other Stories

By Emily Peasgood

CALL FOR MEN!

BIRDS and other Stories is a composition by Emily Peasgood that celebrates women. Created for the 2017 Power Of Women Festival in Thanet—part of the wider celebrations around International Women's Week—BIRDS and other Stories will premiere at 2pm on Saturday 11 March 2017 at Turner Contemporary, Margate.

We are looking for stories from men that describe important women in their lives to form an exhibition of stories on the premiere day. You can share a sentence, paragraph, short story or poem - as little or as much as you prefer. Please do not worry about typos or grammatical errors: it doesn't need to be perfect, or a masterpiece. Just speak from the heart and share your story about a woman that is important to you, that you admire or respect, and most importantly, tell us why she means so much to you. If selected, your story will be displayed publicly on the premiere day, and may feature in the composition and performance. You can submit anonymously.

We are also looking for men who would like to take part in performing the composition. This will involve reading some words you have written (see above) and singing a short song with a large group of male and female singers. You will not be required to perform alone and do not need to be an experienced singer or have even sung before. All are welcome.

Please email your story to: em@empeasgood.com by 1 March 2017.

Or you can contribute anonymously by visiting: www.empeasgood.com/birds
